Why I Walk-

I started walking in August 2005 when a friend kept asking me to join Circle of Friends. At that time, I thought of my daughter's close friend, Amy, losing her mother at such a young age. Since then, our close friend, Diane, has gone through a lot with ovarian cancer. In the last two months, I have had an aunt and a sister-in-law go through mastectomies. It just keeps hitting closer and closer to home. I feel like there is something I should do in their honor. The friendships I have with these wonderful people are priceless. The least I can do is use my physical ability to raise the funds for research and treatments to save the precious lives of mine and your loved ones. It may be just my small part, but every step counts.
